

Dear Enso Circlers,

This is one of the best (and worst) videos I have made on composition. I did it for CraftArtEdu years ago. I used it in a lot of my in-person workshops at my old teaching studio, but always would cringe at how dorky I sounded.

Nevertheless, if you can ignore that (and the wild and crazy tale about an angel who falls in love with a bird) you will get a LOT out of these principles of Orientation, or Alignment.

Click on the image or the link to access it on Vimeo. There is no password required.

Look what happens when we take the three main images and change the alignment. Do you see a visual dialog beginning? The elements face into each other and make the viewer curious about how they relate.

<https://vimeo.com/185531610>